WHAT IS THE LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® METHOD?

When we use our hands in a creative process, we express our thoughts and ideas in a more detailed and nuanced way. This means they are easier to understand and remember – leading to more effective dialogues and better results.

The LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® method is a scientifically developed and thoroughly tested creative tool for strategy, team, personal and organisational development. The method was developed by the LEGO® Company in cooperation with leading strategy and organisational development professors from IMD in Switzerland.

THE CORE OF THE LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® METHOD:

The key drivers of the method are play, flow and imagination, creating a safe, multisensory and multidimensional working environment. The method is based on extensive research from different areas of research. The theoretical core areas are:

- Constructivism (Piaget; 1951).
- Constructionism (Charel and Papert; 1991).
- Complex Adaptive Systems' theory (Holland; 1995).
- Autopoietic Organizational Epistemology (Von Krogh and Roos; 1994, 1995, Weick; 2000).
- Flow (Mihaly Csikszentmihalyi; 1993).

WHY DOES LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® WORK?

- ① LSP uses the diversity of the LEGO® brick. The LEGO® elements act as three-dimensional models of complex issues: academic, organisational, individual and collective.
- ② The use of constructions and narratives increases mutual understanding of the breath and depth of the issues. Embodying these in physical models makes visible and helps you to play out realistic scenarios, test different possibilities and identify valuable solutions that can be implemented immediately.
- ③ The process also effectively promotes knowledge sharing, involvement and inspiration - which strengthens your ability to tackle new challenges together!
